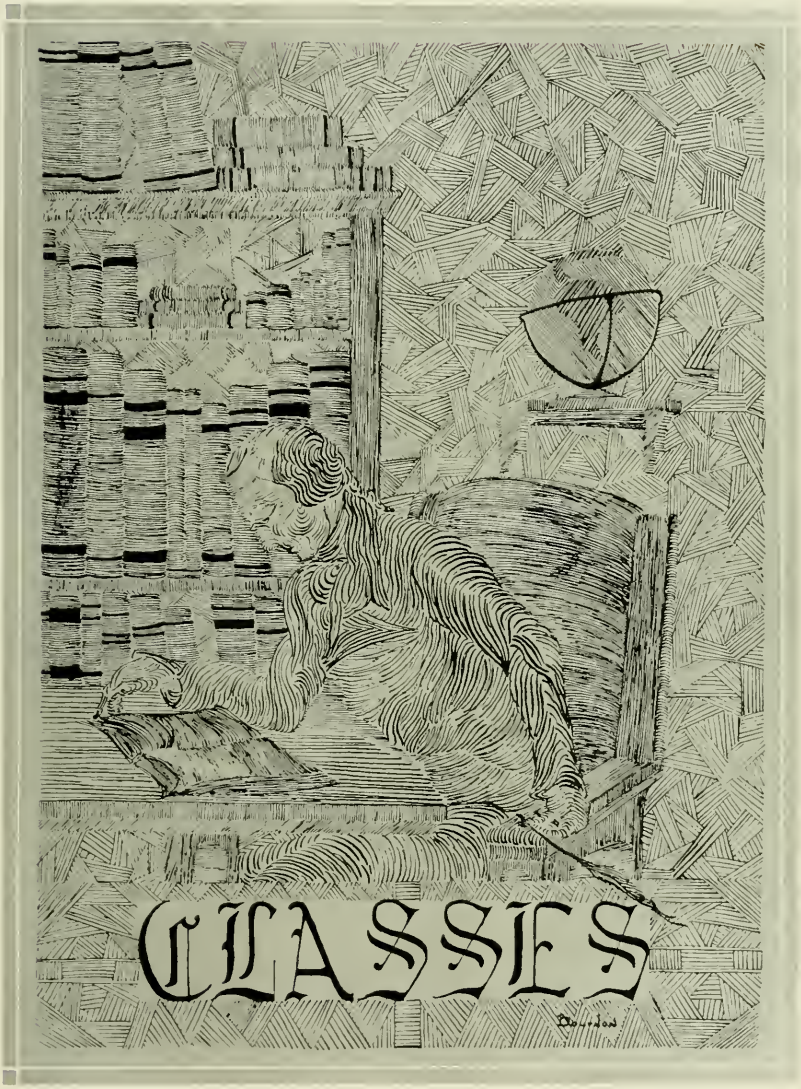
To the Students,
Richmond Division,
College of William and Mary:

In behalf of the Mother College at Williamsburg, we extend to you our heartiest greetings, and wish for you continued success in the development of the College spirit of your institution. Your loyalty and continued fidelity is deeply appreciated by me.



At the outbreak of the Revolution the Chair of Law was occupied by George Wythe, an alumnus of the College, and among his students was John Marshall, later Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. Besides many other alumni prominent in the affairs of the nation, the College boasts four Presidents of the United States—Thomas Jefferson, James Monroe, William Henry Harrison, and John Tyler

We Wonder

FATE'S as full of tricks as a circus mule. Here I am in Reno, my assignment from the Peoria Peep-Hole in my pocket. I guess I won't bother 'bout it yet, though. It's always best to get acquainted with the surroundings first.

Don't tell me that's a real western patent medicine man under my window! There's something strangely familiar about that musical voice. Let's see. I've got it. It's Virginia Martin, the long-legged peddler, and she's demonstrating that hair grower on Sarah Forstmann's tresses. I suppose I won't speak to them yet. It might decrease their following. The following doesn't seem very interested. I wonder—why it's Winnie Meade! There must be some catch in this traveling drug store.

I'm going down and—watch out where you're going there! Why, Gertrude Beauchamp, you ought to know better than to try to sell Hersheys out here! It's too hot for the nuts.

I guess I'll stroll over to see the sand formations before supper. "Ladees and gentlemen, on the right you will———" If it isn't Virginia Crooks announcing the wonders! (Must have got stuck out here on one of her week-end trips.)

Stop pushing me. Well, Umpty, what are you doing here? Oh, coaching the sand fleas in football—it's a charming occupation I'm sure!

There's some strange excavation over there in the sand. I think I'll go over and read that sign. H'mm, "Hamner Desert Construction Company—Street Car Tracks a Specialty—Prompt Service—Private Cars."

What are those things jumping up and down? Why, if it isn't Jean Casey, Iberis Jones, and Isabelle Whitlock trying to feel the pulse of those jumping beans! And are those beans hopping mad!

Well, well, I'll be on my way. Oh, look at those clever little pots those Indians are selling! I believe I'd recognize that slouch anywhere. Morgan, where did you get that beautiful striped blanket you're wrapped up in? Why, you don't mean Marian Moiphey is out here to bring the story of the Easter bunny to the Indian children, and Norma Overstreet is in a side show over on the other side of town?

Goodness! No, I'm not so surprised after all. That couldn't be anybody but Mary Bartlett lying over there in the sun taking a "rest course."

What are those papers Janie Brown is carrying around so carefully? They can't be English themes. Oh, I see, they're court depositions!

Who's that sticking pins in that cactus over there? It's Mary Bliley (I knew I heard a faint "I'm a wreck!"), and it would be Ruth Brock trying to get a shower bath out of a cactus.

Let me get a little closer to that Neon sign: "Besecker International Detective Agency. Let me catch up with your husband." No, don't let her get him.

And what's this? "Miner and Thompson—Roulette—Red Dog—Double Your Alimony." That's an idea.

What good luck! Here comes Louise Belcher, the only social worker I've seen out here. I'll ask her what the class of '32 is doing in Reno in full force. A social worker'll know. "Oh, Laura Mae Stone Von Pippin, O.S.X.R.S., is here to get a divorce, and I am trying to patch things up on account of the twins." And the rest of them? "Oh, they're trying to get a cast-off husband." Well, Mary Catherine Griffith, of the Reno Debunker, says some of them will probably be out here another ten years.

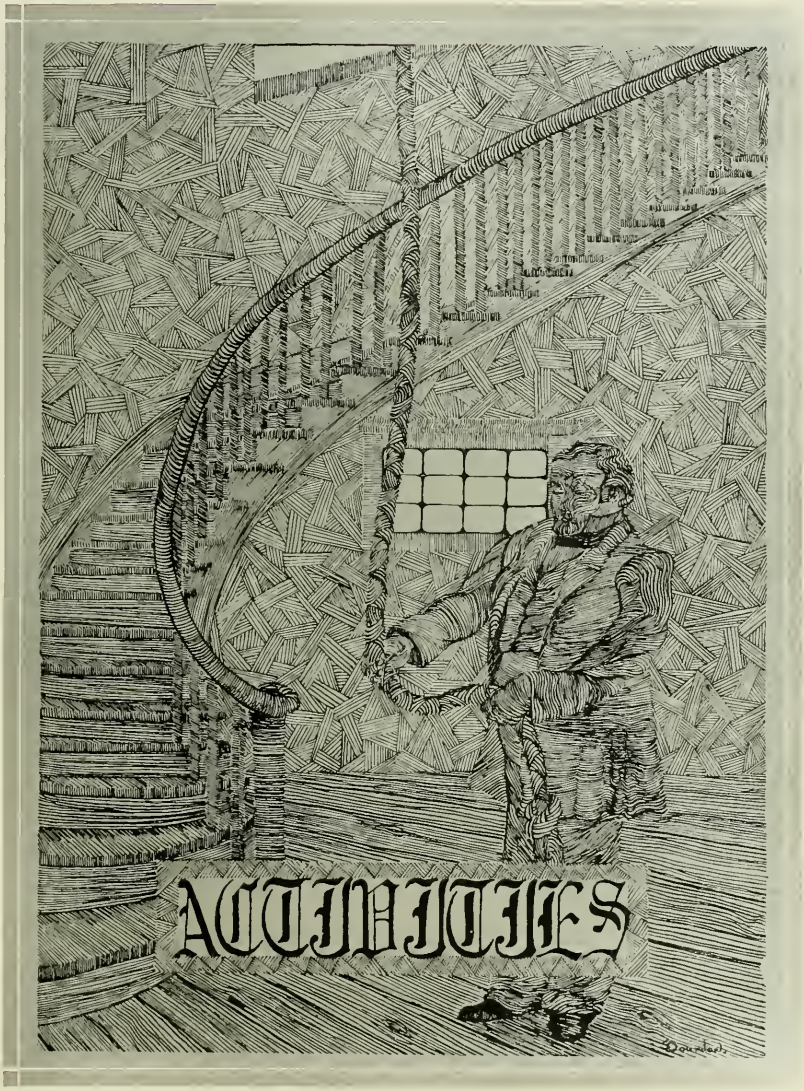
on their graduation and entrance into the field of work, to offer its advice and assistance to them in the problems they will inevitably meet, and to invite them to join the Association at the Annual Luncheon to be given in their honor during graduation week.



Although college activities were suspended during the War Between the States and most of the students and professors joined the Confederate Army, President Ewell went daily to the College and rang the bell which in times of peace called the students to their tasks

The Atlas Club

What Is The Atlas Club?

IN THE FALL of 1927 a group of school-spirited girls organized a club for the purpose of furthering interest in athletics. The name chosen for the organization was "The Atlas Club," and "We support the school" was adopted as their motto. From being primarily concerned with athletics, the scope of the Club's interests broadened to include all school activities, and in 1929-30 it was decided to put membership in the Club on an honorary basis.

The qualifications for membership are leadership, scholarship, and service. Names are brought up before the Club for consideration twice yearly—in the spring and in the fall. Before a girl can be considered for membership, she must, in the judgment of the Club, have displayed qualities of leadership in school affairs, must have made some contribution to the College in the way of service, and must have an average of not less than eighty-five per cent. in her previous college work. Members are chosen from the junior and senior classes. They are nominated by unanimous vote of the Club and elected by a majority vote of the student body.

Each year the Club undertakes a project to fill some need felt by the school. In the beginning it gave sweaters to the letter-men in basketball. Later it sponsored and financed the publication of the Atlas Paper until it was taken over by the Student Government Association. Last year it filled a particularly great need by assisting in the furnishing and decoration of the Students' Room; and this year it opened the Atlas Shop for the greater convenience of students in obtaining books and stationery.

Because of the high standards required of its members, during the past session the Atlas Club has had only ten on roll. However, it is the earnest wish of all the members, past and present, that the membership will be increased in the future.

Behind The Scenes In Basketball

BASKETBALL SEASON! What does that mean to each of us? To some it means nothing. They hear occasionally that a game was played the night before. To many, it means a chance to show that indescribable thing people call "school spirit," an hour once or twice a week of thrill, excitement, and enjoyment. To a dozen or more, however, it means something much more vital, real, and alive. It means six weeks of hard work, fun, and deprivation. Great credit is due each one of these girls who are more than willing to keep training, to give up some of their own pleasures, to attend practice regularly, so that they may be in the best condition possible to represent their school. Don't get the idea, however, that it is "all work and no play," because, in agreement with the old saying, such a combination would "make Jack a dull boy." A glance in at one of the practices or games would thoroughly convince you that this is a false idea. There is present among these girls always that wonderful spirit of companionship one almost always finds developed in participation in a sport.

Harriet Montague's keen sense of humor which she seems to have inherited fully from her well-known "dad," and Mary Bliley's continual state of "I'm a wreck," are enough to keep the squad in the gayest of humors, not to forget Alice Farrell whose ideas are always astounding, refreshing, and surprisingly successful. Then there is Miss Roberts whose knowledge of the game combined with her personality brings the inevitable result of getting the very best possible from each girl individually and the group as a whole. Side by side with Miss Roberts come Mary Umberger, captain, and Winnifred Meade, manager. This was a wonderful and extremely successful pair, both co-operating to make the 1932 season one of the best William and Mary has ever known. The schedule was interesting and varied with games with seven local teams, three out-of-town teams, and two trips, one to Williamsburg, the other to Lynchburg.

Sending Your Luggage

WHETHER it be to or from college, you will find sending your luggage can be most conveniently and safely done by using Railway Express Service.
This includes Collection and Delivery in the heart of most cities and towns.
One reliable company renders the entire service—door to door in most cases.
The charge for through service by express compares favorably with cost of transportation by other service.
Charges may be prepaid or your trunk may be sent with charges to collect when delivered.
